CAMELIA THE WINNER.

Candidates for the Event and Their Owners.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD BY CABLE.] LONDON, May 5, 1876.

The One Thousand Guineas, which bears the same relation to the Oaks that the Two Thousand Guineas does to the Derby, came off at Newmarket to-day and was won by Count F. de Lagrange's chestnut

THE EVENT AND COURSE.

The One Thousand Guineas (worth about £1,000) and the Oaks are for three-year-old filles only, but in the Two Thousand Guineas and Derby animals of either sex may compete.

Formerly the Two Thousand and One Tho were run over different courses, but at the suggestion of General Peel it was decided that the track in both instances should be the Rowley mile, which is seventeen yards over a mile, undulating, with a somewhat severe bill to climb at the finish, and straight. This course is covered by the best horses in about 1:42. TIMING IN ENGLAND.

When Skylark one of the Derby favorites won the Biennial Stakes over the Rowley mile at the Newmarket Craven Meeting, he is said to have been 2m. 1s. covering the distance, which is absurd. It is not the time test that is so much at fault in England as the slovenly manner in which it is taken. It is done only to advertise the chronograph of a certain watchmaker, and to my own knowledge a mistake of one minute was made in connection with the Oxford and Cambridge boat race. The English newpapers care nothing about the matter, and accept just what is told them. The man who judged the boat race had a bet that the time would be the fastest on record, but on this occasion a check was put on him : otherwise the Cambridge performance would have been much more extraordinary than it really was. The same is the case with the horse races. It is almost impossible to time a race at Newmarket unless two men are employed. The horses start so far away that the man at the winning post cannot tell to a second or two when it has taken place.

DISTINGUISHED PROPIE PRESENT. There was a very fine attendance on the Heath, Prince Saltykoff, Prince Batthyamy, Lord Hartingon Sir Fred Johnstone, the Earl of Hardwicke, the Dake of Hamilton, Sir George Chetwood, Lord Lons dale, Admiral Rous, the Earl of Westmoreland, Sir John Astley, Lord Dorchester, Lord Dupplin, Lord Falmouth, Lord Lascelles, Lord Rosebery, Lord Rosslyn, the Duke of St. Albans and Lord Stamford being present, in addition to several foreign notabilities.

With the outside public the race is not a very popular one. The runners, too, on the present occasion, were not of a very high class. Twine the Plaiden, who had all along been considered to have the best chance, is the property of Mr. Bowes, one of the oldest sportsmen in England, who has won four Derbys, and is yet, strange to say, almost unknown on the English turf. He resides almost solely in Paris, and Fordham, who has ridden for hun for years, did not know him even by sight until last season. The Plirt, who was also considered to have a great chance, was formerly the property of Lord Falmouth, who tried her most highly; sold her for £100 to Mr. Jolliffe, who was not long in getting back the purchase and hence was only able to best Mr. Gretton's Solitude money, with considerable interest. Mr. Jolline. by a head, over the two-year-old course. In the Corventurer, whose life has been one long struggle against debt. He was a director of the Honduras loan, out of which his friend, the wily Frenchman, Mr. C. L. Lefevre, is said to have made £1,000,000, not much of which found its way into the pocket of Captain Jones. After The Flirt had won a race or two at Newmarket last autumn, it dawned upon the creditors of the owner that he must have money. and he at once had to "square" no fewer than seventeen bankruptcy summonses. This year he and a great favorite for the Lincolnshire Handicap. that was at the last moment nearly being prevented from starting, a sheriff's officer claiming the horse for a debt which had to be at once paid. It is said that the bookmakers were at the bottom of this. Solltude, who ran one or two good races last year, belongs to Mr. Gretton, who is a partner and draws £60,000 per annum out of the great brewery firm of Bass & Co., in which his father commenced life as a laborer. This gentleman had also Sorceress engage 1. Perhaps the best supporter of the race was Count Learange, who took eight nominations. Two of these were filled by animals of some repute both Carrella and Allumette having distinguished themselves.

The betting on the race was not of a very active character until after the Two Thousand Guineas had been decided, when the bookmakers began to peculate very heavily on it. The defeat of Arena at the Craven meeting threw Twine the Plaiden somewhat into the shade, more especially as the representatives of Count Lagrange were spoken of ome of the nominations appeared in the entry one annot imagine, as they are not good enough to win a saddle at Barnet Fair, and yet the lowest forfest was £50. Those that started were Count F. de Lagrange's Camella and Allumette, Mr. A. de Montcomery's La Seine, Mr. G. Lambert's Majesty, Mr. Saville's Zec, Mr. Bowes' Twine the Plaiden, Lord Falmouth's Lovely Thats, Mr. Chaplin's Margarita, Mr. Jennings' Lady Maiden, Mr. Jolliffe's The Flirt, Mr. Crawfurd's En Avant and Bric-s-brac, and Mr. Gretton's Solitude. The thirteen competitors asmbled in capital time, and when the flag fell got away on equitable terms. They had not ascended the Bushes Hill before it was evident that the favorite would have all she could do to win, as Count Lagrange's representatives were edging to the front. At the Abingdon Bottom the latter were doing excellent work, and shortly after Camella ass command. Allumette made a good fight, but her efforts, however, were futile, as Camelia maintained per advantage, and won by a head. Allumette was second, and La Seine third, Majesty was fourth, Zee fifth, Twine the Plaiden sixth, Lovely Thais seventh, Margarita eighth, Lady Malden ninth, The Flirt tenth, En Avant eleventh, Bric-a-brac twelfth and
